DCI Talking Points for Larry Eagleburger Lunch

--Larry, your contribution to the United States as a diplomat and senior officer in the Department of State is legendary and need not be amplified here; although the many plaudits and kudos you have received well merit our own testimony to that end.

--Today a representative cross section of CIA has come to this lunch to honor you, not for your role as a diplomat but as an individual who has helped CIA do its enormous job that much better.

--The treatment that you have given the Agency as a member and key player in U.S. embassies around the world has facilitated our operations as well as administrative niceties.

--We have welcomed this advice and counsel. We have matured with your support and we are grateful that you accepted the role as a designated point man for so many of the Agency's causes.

--In recognition of the immense contribution which you have given to the Agency, we wish you to have this everlasting memento of our deepest thanks and appreciation.
